PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Māori Culture

More than one thousand years ago, the Maori people came to New Zealand from their ancestral homeland of Hawaiki, arriving in waka hourua (voyaging canoes) to bring their native tribal language and ancient traditions. The natural beauty of the islands and rich volcanic soil that first attracted them also drew Dutch, English, and French explorers in the early 19th century. Today, the Maori make up more than 14 percent of the New Zealand population, many working to keep their proud legacy intact. Our unique itinerary allows you to immerse yourself in the unique Maori heritage and enjoy firsthand the friendly Kiwi culture—a distinctive merging of the tangata whenua (indigenous) and Pakeha (European) traditions.
